How do I know it's secure?

- Extensive audits and testing were performed to secure the IRS contract.
- Only withdrawals authorized by the taxpayer are made; no other funds can legally be withdrawn.
- Taxpayer receives electronic confirmation when the card transaction is authorized.
- The tax payment is listed on the taxpayer's bank statement as proof of payment.

- IFP screen in Drake Tax data entry
- Drake Software User's Manual, "Electronic Payment Options" section of Chapter 5, "Return Preparation"

It's as simple as

1-2-3:

1. Complete the tax return or extension.
2. Confirm the balance due and authorize the payment (IFP screen).
3. Transmit the return.

If the return is rejected, the hold on the funds is released and the payment is not made. Authorization must be initiated again on the IFP screen before e-filing the return again, or the taxpayer must choose another payment method. See the Drake Software User's Manual or the IFP screen help for more details.
